COPYRIGHT STATEMENT

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials including foreign works under certain conditions. In addition, the United States extends protection to foreign works by means of various international conventions, bilateral agreements, and proclamations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

The Columbia University Libraries reserve the right to refuse to accept a copying order if, in its judgement, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of the copyright law.

INTRODUCTORY

The 1929 edition of this directory listed approximately 13,000 organizations; the present edition lists over 19,000, made up of 2,634 interstate, national, and international, 3,050 State and territorial, and 13,625 local organizations.

National, interstate, and international organizations are listed alphabetically and classified by commodities and functions. They are also listed geographically in the "State and local" section under the city in which headquarters are located. State organizations are listed only under the city or town in which headquarters are located in the "State and local" section.

In preparing this, the eighth edition of Commercial and Industrial Organizations of the United States, it has been the aim to include all such organizations which have for their purpose the advancement of an industry, trade or profession, and the promotion of commerce and industry generally on a regional basis; that is, local, State or territorial. The difficulty in securing a complete statement of activities and a proper measure of their importance made it necessary to be more or less arbitrary in selecting names for the list.

It will be of material assistance in the completion of future issues if users of this directory will bring to our attention any errors or omissions.

If further information is desired on the activities of trade associations, it may be found in Trade Association Activities (Domestic Commerce Series No. 20), and Market Research Agencies (Domestic Commerce Series No. 6), publications of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The first describes the activity according to trades and the latter outlines the research being carried on or already completed on marketing problems.

Material assistance was rendered in the compilation of the directory by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, American Trade Association Executives, and many other organizations.

The compilation was made under the direction of John Ambler Smith, of the marketing service division.
